

Figures stun local housing society

TERRACE — Members of the Skeena Valley Co-op Housing Society are stunned by news the B.C. Housing Management Commission (BCHMC) has allocated only 16 units to the north.

Each year BCHMC announces how many affordable housing units it is prepared to build and invites interested groups to submit proposals.

Last week the local society learned the north will get just 16 family-oriented units out of the more than 300 being allocated across the province.

"We had no idea we were going to be cut back," society spokesman Keith Goodwin said.

And there may be even worse news to come, he added.

Goodwin explained the 16 units were only a "preliminary" allocation pending what happens in the federal budget.

If the federal government again cut its contribution to the housing program and Victoria does not make up the shortfall, he feared the allocation could be cut still further.

As it is, even the 16 units falls short of 24 unit development the society wants to build here and believes is needed.

"It's just not on," Goodwin said, suggesting even if cuts were necessary, they shouldn't have affected communities that had no affordable family housing projects yet, like Terrace.

Given the low allocation, it was obvious only one northern application was going to be successful. "It really puts the pressure on," he said.

The society is also concerned about another aspect of the proposal call from BCHMC.

In a section outlining vacancy rates and average rents, Prince George's name is shaded, unlike any other northern city.

Querying whether that indicated Prince George was already being targeted by the commission, he asked, "Are we working for nothing?"

Goodwin said the society had already met with local MLA Helmut Giesbrecht and asked him to get an answer to that and other questions it has.

A letter is also being sent to city council asking it organize a lobby by all northern communities seeking an increase in the unit allocation.

In the meantime, the society is trying to strengthen its case by surveying accommodation waiting lists here.

Goodwin said he knew of one case where a home-to-rent ad had drawn more than 60 enquiries.

"The need is certainly out there," he emphasized.

The society's proposed development will include one to four-bedroom units intended for one and two-parent, low income families. It will also include four units adaptable to those with special needs.

More claims info, please

TERRACE — Mayor Jack Talstra says he hopes there'll be more information soon on the Nisga'a land claims talks.

Talstra sits on a locally-elected officials committee which gets regular briefings on land claims negotiations.

"I think all that we've done is succeeded in slightly broadening the jurisdictional boundaries a little bit," said Talstra.

"Before the talks were fairly secretive. Where there were 20 people involved before, there are now 60. We've not yet succeeded in bringing the information out to the general public."

A series of committees were formed last year by the province in response to criticism that the negotiations between the provincial and federal governments and the Nisga'a Tribal Council are being conducted in secret.

Talstra also sits on a sub-committee examining the effects of land claims settlements on local government and taxation issues.

Talstra has been a critic of the secrecy and last year walked out of a briefing session when those in attendance were asked to keep the information confidential.

Federal and provincial officials have replied that there is a confidentiality clause in the agreement set out to conduct the talks.

Talstra has acknowledged that there is a need for some confidentiality.

The committees Talstra sits on have been slow in making progress and are now only starting to jell, he said.

"They caution us that what we hear we should not read as necessarily the position of any government," Talstra continued.

And Talstra said he has not heard anything yet that could be a problem.

"You can be sure if there'd be anything detrimental, you'd hear about it," said Talstra.

Mills to hear CT sales talks on April 14

TERRACE — Three companies wanting to sell Mills Memorial Hospital a CT scanner make their sales pitches here April 14.

"Each one gets an hour to make presentations and to show their capabilities," said Mills Memorial spokesman Michael Leisinger last week.

The presentations were organized following the approval last month by the provincial government of operating monies for a CT scan device.

A CT scanner provides a three-dimensional image compared to the flat images from X-rays.

Those companies making presentations are General Electric, Picker (an American company) and Toshiba.

Mills Memorial had been in touch with the companies before when it was estimating purchase costs and requirements as part of its pitch to the provincial government.

Money to purchase a scanner came from a three-year effort organized by the Dr. R.E.M. Lee Hospital Foundation in which numerous individuals, organizations and businesses made contributions.

That amount raised now stands at more than $600,000.

Sales of foundation cash calendars over the past three years contributed $150,000 to the total.

The money raised is enough for a mid range scanner but the hospital has asked the provincial government for an additional $150,000 to purchase a high mid-range one.

The latter scanner is faster than lower-priced models and that should lower overall operating costs, said Leisinger.

He said the hospital hopes to know if its request will be granted before the April 14 presentations.

And he also said the hospital foundation could commit itself to raise the additional money if it isn't given by the provincial government.

"There'll be representatives from the foundation there. The hospital will identify the needs and the foundation will provide the financial information," said Leisinger.

"We'll know a lot more on the 14th. We'll then have a much better idea of how low the price might be. Not many of these are sold each year so the prices could be very good," he added.

The provincial government is also paying for renovations at the hospital to accommodate the CT scan device.

Mills estimates annual operating costs at $223,000 a year of which 75 per cent will be covered by the province.

The CT device could be installed by the fall if all goes according to plan.

Part of the rationale for putting a CT device here is to spread its use throughout the northwest.

The use of teleradiology — the transmitting of scan images on special telephone lines — should help medical specialists and patients in other towns and cities.

The budget

TERRACE — What went up and what went down after last week's provincial budget?

You'll find that and more information on how the province wants to spend nearly $19 billion in the coming year on Page A5.

There are also details on how a new crown corporation which will build highways, schools, hospitals and schools.

Be warned — we still have a deficit and the total debt will climb over the next year.

Attempted murder charge laid

TERRACE — A fight by the railway tracks turned to tragedy the night of March 31 when a 17-year-old Terrace youth lost both his legs beneath a freight train.

RCMP said Cameron Davis, a grade 11 student, fell beneath the moving CN coal train during an altercation with 19-year-old Clinton Shannon Skulsh, of Kitwanga.

Both of the boy's legs were severed at mid-thigh. Davis is recovering at Mills Memorial Hospital in Terrace.

Skulsh was charged last Friday with attempted murder and aggravated assault in connection with the incident. He was released on $1,000 bail.

RCMP Cpl. Rob McKay called it a "horrendous incident" and said alcohol was a factor.

It happened just after 8 p.m. Wednesday night beneath the Sande Overpass.

The train was moving at about 16 miles an hour, McKay said. More than half the train had gone by when the accident happened.

He said Davis may have been "sucked" underneath by the motion of the train.

McKay said there was one eyewitness to the incident besides Davis.

"They were down at the tracks — somewhere where they shouldn't be," McKay explained.

"There were signs of alcohol."

"One thing leads to another, an altercation occurs and the individual becomes seriously injured."

Friends and teachers are rallying around Davis.

"We're going to try to help him as best we can," said Caledonia Senior Secondary School principal Tom Hamakawa.

Davis is expected to be transferred to the G.F. Strong Rehabilitation Centre in Vancouver soon.

"At this stage it's really early to say what we can do," Hamakawa added. "Right now all we can do is wait and hope he gets better."

He said Davis had the highest mark in his class in a recent test.

"He's a really good kid," Hamakawa said. "It's a real tragedy."

He said the school may be able to help him complete courses with in-hospital tutoring.

RCMP CONSTABLE Kim Hall (right) and CN Police Lt. Bob Teolis held a press conference last week near the railway tracks where a youth lost his legs after being run over by the wheels of a train. A 19-year-old man has been charged with attempted murder as a result of the incident.

We're lucky more of us aren't killed

TERRACE — Horrific train accidents in Terrace are rare. But CN Police Lt. Bob Teolis says that has more to do with luck than the intelligence of people who cut across the tracks.

He says trespassers frequently cross the tracks — instead of taking the overpass — to get to the other side of the city.

"I've seen families walk through between cars," Teolis said. "I've seen a woman go through with a baby in a stroller."

The last time a civilian was killed in the Terrace yard was in 1986 when a man died while crossing between train cars.

Teolis said a woman on a snowmobile was hit and killed outside of town in 1988.

"You've got trespassers constantly going back and forth," Teolis said, noting the Sande Overpass is the only route from one side of town to the other.

"You've got a railyard. You build a city around it — it makes it difficult to police on a 24-hour basis."

RCMP and CN police have been issuing $100 tickets in recent months to trespassers in the railyard.

"For them it's a shortcut. But when you come right down to it it's got to be the most dangerous shortcut they'll ever take."

Many rush when they see a train coming.

"The first thing they think is 'I'm going to beat the train,'" he said. "But all they've got to do is trip and fall in front of it and they haven't got a chance."

CN employees are also not immune to the dangers of railyards.

Two years ago a CN conductor was killed in the yard when he was crushed between two cars.

Police bust pot farm

TERRACE — It was no April Fool's joke when police moved in to arrest a couple on a farm 65km east of Terrace last Thursday.

RCMP seized $400,000 worth of marijuana and indoor hydroponic growing equipment from a 16-by-35-foot building on the acreage.

One officer described the building as designed solely for the purpose of growing marijuana and called it an elaborate grow operation.

The 52-year-old man and 51-year-old woman face charges of marijuana cultivation and narcotic possession for the purpose of trafficking.

Police seized $350,000 worth of marijuana and $50,000 worth of lighting equipment and hydroponic equipment.

They carried out the raid at 4 p.m. on Thursday, Apr. 1.

The investigation is continuing.

Thieves target vehicles

TERRACE — Thieves went on a stealing spree March 30, according to RCMP.

Police received reports of six vehicles being broken into.

Stereos, stereo equipment and radar detectors were the main targets of the culprits.

One youth was arrested in connection with the overnight theft of a radar detector from a vehicle. Charges are pending.

RCMP remind the public to lock their vehicles and to keep valuables out of sight whenever possible.

THAT'S RCMP Corporal Robert Minhinnick with just a bit of the marijuana seized from a farm east of town last week. A couple face charges of as a result of the seizure.

News in brief

Poison phone line

A toll-free 24-hour phone line connected to the B.C. Drug and Information Centre is now in service from Burns Lake to the Queen Charlotte Islands. The number is 1-800-567-8911.

A caller can find out more about real or perceived poisoning by dialling the number. Information on prevention, first aid and emergency treatment is available.

The phone line, up until now, has only been available to health care workers and residents in Greater Vancouver and in Victoria. All areas of the province will be connected by next year.

Tourism potential studied

A consulting firm hired by the provincial government to look into land and resources used for tourism is in Smithers today and tomorrow.

U.M.A. Consulting Group is presenting its preliminary findings contained on a computer data base. It'll then be used when decisions are made on tourism development and land use management.

The data base contains trails, river rafting and canoeing areas and areas that contain habitat or have natural or ecological significance.

Young people try smoking

More female teenagers smoke than males, says information from the B.C. Lung Association. In 1966, girls made up only 34 per cent of smokers aged 15 to 19 but they now make up 60 per cent of that group.

And the lung association says that 16 per cent of young people aged 15 and 19 smoke.

The information is contained in a fact sheet sent out by the B.C. Lung Association.

It says that young people buy more than two billion cigarettes a year for a retail sale value of $400 million.

Recent legislation, when it comes into force, will ban the sale of tobacco products to people under the age of 18 from the current age of 16. The penalty will increase from $100 to a maximum $50,000.

Police inquiry visits

No advance notice is needed by people who want to speak before an inquiry into policing that's visiting two northwest cities.

"It's open to everybody. They can just walk in," said inquiry spokesman Ann Murnaghan of meetings in Prince Rupert April 15 and in Kitimat April 16.

The inquiry is visiting more than 25 communities covered by the RCMP this spring. It's also spent time on the lower mainland.

Headed by Mr. Justice Wallace T. Oppal, the inquiry is to gather opinions and recommendations about policing.

The commission is in Prince Rupert at the Crest Motor Hotel from 2-5 p.m. and from 7-10 p.m. April 15 and at the same times at the Riverlodge Recreation Centre in Kitimat April 16. Written submissions are also welcomed.

Students offered loans

Students who want to start summer businesses can get business loans from the Federal Business Development Bank and the federal Challenge '93 program.

The $3,000 loans are interest free and students must be 15 years or older. Students must return to school in the fall in order to qualify. More information is available at the development bank in Terrace or at the Canada Employment Centre.

Loans must be paid by Oct. 8 and there is a $100 rebate for repaying before Sept. 10.

Hospice is a philosophy of care and, at times, a building. Canuck Place will be a focal point, putting caring philosophy into practice for children with progressive, life-threatening illness and their families throughout British Columbia. Canuck Place will focus on the child and family as a unit, providing for their physical, emotional and spiritual needs.

Canuck Place will be a free-standing facility designed to accommodate eight children in separate rooms, with two family suites large enough for groups of four. It will also house outreach, consultation, educational and support services.

Why Is Canuck Place Needed?

Given a choice, most ill children would prefer to be cared for, and to die, at home. Through its consultation services with health care providers in the community, Canuck Place will make every effort to help this happen.

Families caring for their ill child at home need a break from the 24-hour a day, seven days a week responsibility and stress. Canuck Place will provide in-patient, respite care for these families in a home-away-from-home atmosphere.

When a child is close to death, dying at home isn't always possible - sometimes there is no home in which to die. The warm, supportive environment of Canuck Place will be the next best thing.

Who are the Children?

Children between birth and 17 years of age, suffering from progressive, life-threatening illness, such as cancer, cystic fibrosis, muscular dystrophy, neurodegenerative conditions, AIDS, and other illnesses.

What are the Components of Canuck Place?

Palliative Care

Where therapy is directed toward comfort and quality of life rather than cure.

Respite Care

To assist families to renew their strength and to return to a trying situation with refreshed spirits.

Bereavement Care

To assist surviving family members, other caregivers, and friends to cope with the profound grief that accompanies the death of a child, regardless of its cause.

Bold message

It's not so much that the provincial government raised taxes last week. It's the feeling that the increases are going into some black financial hole far and away from our control. This comes despite the province's mighty sales pitch that the budget reduces the growth of spending and will also reduce the yearly operating deficit.

That's because spending and revenue calculations are based on assumptions. If revenues are more than forecast and spending is less than what is calculated, it's good news. But it's bad news if the reverse is true. And there's all sorts of room within any government's financial system for all sorts of political shenanigans designed to obscure the true picture.

Instead, the provincial government would have picked up valuable and valid political points, not to mention a sense of fiscal sanity, by creating a budget reduction account. Here's how it might work. The government does raise taxes. But the increases go directly into the account. The paperwork is handled by a body independent of the province. Each month whatever has been collected is delivered to wherever we owe it to in a very public ceremony.

There was even one suggestion making the rounds last week of how to publicize this. Drivers by now will have noticed the new message sign heading west on Hwy16. It's big, bold and can be programmed to send out any kind of message. How about a deficit reduction clock? As money pours into the account, the clock shows the decrease.

And there's more. Tie the clock into a highway toll system. Each time a car goes through and pays a toll, the amount decreases. Heck, we could even send out young offenders to comb the sides of the highway a couple of times a month for empty beer cans to run the clock down even further.

Up the creek

Over the years some of the most vociferous opponents of federal Department of Fisheries and Oceans (DFO) policies have claimed it is not overly interested in conservation.

The Deep Creek hatchery decision proves they were right.

The Terrace Salmonid Enhancement Society asked for two separate grants.

The first, $53,000, would allow the hatchery to stay in the business of raising fish.

The second, $52,000, would cover the cost of the annual count of Kalum River chinook.

The DFO has now told the society it'll get the money to do the fish census but not a penny for the hatchery operation.

In other words, DFO would rather count fish than help maintain or increase their numbers.

And it doesn't take a genius to predict what the counts will show in a few years time. The society estimates up to four per cent of returning Kalum chinook and as many as 40 per cent of Cedar chinook have been raised at the Deep Creek facility.

Therefore, take away the hatchery and you guarantee a decline in chinook in those streams.

And when that eventually happens, it will also probably be the point at which some bright spark at DFO will suggest the solution to the problem is.... a hatchery.

Welfare breeding masters of fraud

Welfare is intended for those who've had the rug yanked out from under them by cruel circumstances. But in B.C. it's a career goal for fraud artists.

Vancouver cops have busted a ring of welfare cheats who've ripped off hundreds of thousands of welfare dollars. Police know of at least 50 people in half a dozen groups, each collecting welfare under half a dozen names.

One man arrested had documents involving over 200 separate identities. Another man began collecting welfare without showing any identification at all! Why, even the Terrace library asks applicants for one piece of mail showing their name and current address.

Nonetheless social services minister Joan Smallwood claims she's trying to fraud proof the system.

How?

Smallwood rules out fingerprints or special identity cards. Yet aside from DNA testing - still too slow and costly to use for anything less than murder investigations - fingerprints are the only sure means of checking fraud. For regardless what type of identity card the ministry might devise, crooks would work overtime outsmarting it.

Some might argue thumbprints would be an imposition to welfare recipients. Tough. We don't force anyone to accept welfare. They're never asked to repay, even a percentage of what they

by Claudette Sandeck

receive, unlike student loans for which documentation is exact, lengthy, and the hand-out limited in amount and duration. A steady living allowance in exchange for one smudged finger is easy money.

Certainly easier money than having to show up for work on time, every day, spend all day on the job, and perform well. Hell, they don't even have to pick up their cheque. Mail delivers it to their door.

At the moment, the post office forwards welfare cheques, enabling fraud recipients to skip from province to province, applying and collecting as they travel. Now, though, the post office has agreed not to forward cheques and to tell the ministry if an unusual number of cheques go to one address. High time. Wonder how many equal "unusual"?

It's in the interest of every genuine recipient to eliminate fraud. More than 300,000 people are on assistance in B.C. Eliminating fraud would allow us to increase rates for those in need while reducing total welfare costs, currently $1.5 billion annually in the province.

In last week's budget, Harcourt increased the welfare ministry's budget and upped many taxes to collect the extra amount.

It's sad so many British Columbians need welfare, sadder still our economy doesn't offer more of the right kind of jobs, saddest of all government can't (or won't) do a better job screening out fraudulent applicants.

I don't begrudge welfare to qualified applicants. I do resent government making it as available as paper napkins at a smorgasbord.

Deficit still there despite tax hikes

VICTORIA — When you woke up on the morning of March 30, Glen Clark had you in his sights. By 2:30 p.m., your fate was sealed. You lay bleeding on the floor.

The wounds inflicted by the finance minister's budget vary, depending on the victim's wealth, income and life style.

If you earn $60,000 a year or more, live in a $400,000 home, drive a $30,000 car, smoke and drink, don't bother calling a doctor. You're as good as dead.

Middle-income earners with modest homes and tastes are still severely bruised by Clark's assault. And while low-income earners are getting a break, it's not enough to make them feel a lot better.

Few of the budget measures came as a surprise. The finance minister, aided by government spin doctors, has been so busy speculating on what the budget may or may not contain that any journalist with a modicum of training could have written most of the budget story the day before Clark tabled it in the legislature.

There had been little doubt about the increase in the sales tax from six per cent to seven per cent, which will cram an additional $385 million a year into government coffers.

Equally transparent was the increase in income tax for those earning $60,000 and up. Large corporations may not like the hike in corporate income tax by half a percentage point, but they'd have to be foolish not to have anticipated it.

The tried and proven government cash cows of liquor and tobacco were, of course, pressed into service, once again. Both will go up, liquor by 2.5 per cent to three per cent and tobacco by $1 a

From the Capital

by Hubert Beyer

carton of cigarettes. Gas will go up by $1 cent a litre.

The sneakiest new revenue measure has to do with automobiles, which might easily be interpreted as the NDP's final revenge for what was called "the night of the car dealers," back in 1975, when the Barrett government was drummed out of office by the Socreds, whose ranks included half a dozen or so car dealers.

To start with, the NDP eliminated the sales tax trade-in allowance. That means, you now pay the sales tax on the car's total price, rather than on the difference between the new-car price and the trade-in.

In addition, the government is hammering the purchasers of luxury cars with price tags of $30,000 and up within extra three percentage points on the sales tax.

Let's say, you want to buy a $50,000 car and trade in the model you bought two years earlier for $30,000. Before the budget, you'd have paid $1,200 sales tax; now you'll pay an even $5,000.

Throughout the budget, there are examples of the NDP's Robin Hood philosophy, taken a step further. They take a lot from the rich and give a little to the poor.

Low-income earners, for instance, will get a $50-a-year-sales tax rebate. The Home Owners Grant goes up to $470 for $450 and to $745 from $720 for seniors.

Owners of homes with a market value of $400,000, on the other hand, will have their grant reduced by $10 for every $1,000 above the $400,000-mark.

Middle and high-income earners will pay more for medical coverage - $1 a month for singles and $2 for families - but an estimated 430,000 lower-income earners won't have to pay any premiums, while another 135,000 will have their premiums reduced.

What's the budget mean to the proverbial average family with two kids and an average income? Assuming modest consumption of alcohol and ownership of two cars, that family will pay an additional $27 a year for liquor, $25 for medical coverage, $52 for gas and $150 for sales tax, for a total of $253 a year. If they smoke, add another $36 per person per year.

The structure for increases in personal income tax is too complicated to explain here, safe to say that if you earn in excess of $60,000 a year, you'll pay more.

Despite all the rhetoric about the need to reduce the deficit, government spending will go up more than $1 billion in the new fiscal year.

And the province's total accumulated debt, including that of Crown corporations, will rise to $26,379 billion, up from about $21 billion when the NDP took office.

Deficit to help economy

Helmut Giesbrecht

TERRACE — The provincial economy couldn't have handled a massive cut in government expenditures to balance the budget it brought in last week, says Skeena NDP MLA Helmut Giesbrecht.

"If you took $1.5 billion out of the budget now, the net economic impacts would be pretty drastic. There'd be massive job losses and that wouldn't help the economy," he said.

That $1.5 billion is the estimated shortfall between what the government will take in this year and what it will pay out.

Giesbrecht noted that the deficit is less than it was two years ago and less than the $2 billion for the year just ending.

"It's like a train. You can't stop it on a dime. It would take a brick wall instead. This is slowing it down," he said of the deficit.

"Yes, we're still spending more than we take in, but I should note that's happened in 10 of the last 12 years," the MLA continued.

The provincial debt will stand at $26.4 billion once borrowing to cover shortfalls and other expenditures is done for the year ahead.

That's up from the $20 billion it was two years ago.

Giesbrecht also defended the increase in income tax for people making more than $60,000 a year.

"I think we've got to think in terms of the rest of the country and the rest of the world," said Giesbrecht.

"Any of the baby boomers that are now settled in homes and have their mortgages paid off don't have too many problems," he said if the prospects of having to pay more income tax.

Giesbrecht added that the income tax increases will affect only eight per cent of taxpayers.

He noted that some of the tax increases — the one cent a litre increase in gasoline and diesel this fall — will go to highway construction.

"The B.C. Transportation Financing Authority is a specific fund for a specific purpose," said Giesbrecht.

Giesbrecht said one piece of good news in the budget is the elimination of Medical Services Plan premium payments for 430,000 people.

And he said the new BC21 crown corporation will provide needed jobs to help the province out of a recession.

"We're looking at something here to help get things back to normal," said the MLA.

Even though the new corporation will borrow money and that will create debt, Giesbrecht likened it to buying a house and then making mortgage payments.

LETTERS

TO THE TERRACE STANDARD

That word not needed

Dear Sir:

I am writing this regarding the front page story about MP Jim Fulton's retirement announcement in your March 24 edition.

Why did you find it necessary to include an expletive in the article? Did you forget for a moment that you are writing for a small community newspaper and not Playboy magazine?

I have heard Prince Rupert mayor Peter Lester use offensive language before but I believe inclusion of the epithet was entirely unnecessary to the content of the article and highly inappropriate. You should have exercised your editorial discretion and omitted the entire word in question. The meaning was painfully obvious and coyly deleting three letters did not make it any less offensive.

Please remember that as you are now Terrace's only community newspaper, you are an important source of local news for a broad segment of the populace, including children.

I have encouraged my own seven year-old son to read "The Start" section whenever it seemed appropriate and relevant to him.

Please remember your responsibility to your readership and exercise some integrity in the presentation of the news. In future, please resist the temptation to succumb to titillation.

Lastly, I believe that no matter what one's political inclination, Jim Fulton is our current sitting Member of Parliament and should be accorded more respect, especially in view of his many years of service.

Yours Truly,
Kaeleen Bruce,
Terrace, B.C.

In her prayers

Dear Sir:

In regards to the letter in the March 24 paper, "Self government said a racist way".

Mr. Bill Homburg stated that we were forced to learn English by Catholic teachers. I would like to take this time to thank you as Catholic teachers for teaching us English.

As I see it we are now one more step closer in the fight for our land.

You may also realize Mr. Homburg that the Chinese, Vietnamese and other foreigners did not have their language and cultures taken away and they were not forced to speak English.

They were not forced into Catholic schools. If they wanted to make life easier for themselves they needed to speak English.

So, Mr. Bill Homburg, I have to say to you, "You will be in my prayers."

Charlene Erickson,
Terrace, B.C.

What's Up

Here's a list of what will cost more as a result of the new provincial budget.

- * The provincial sales tax has increased by one point to seven per cent.

- * And the tax is being broadened, as of Oct. 1 to include service items. This brings the tax closer to the federal government's Goods and Services Tax.

- * Liquor prices went up an average 2.5 to 3 per cent and there's an additional $1 tax on a carton of cigarettes.

- * The tax on gasoline and diesel fuel goes up one cent a litre Sept. 1. Exempted is marine fuel, marked gas and marked diesel.

- * Those making more than $60,000 a year can look forward to a provincial surtax. The rate increases the more a person makes.

- * Sales taxes on cars sold for more than $30,000 increase. The top level, if a vehicle costs more than $32,000, is 10 per cent. Excluded are vans and trucks larger than three-quarter ton.

- * The general corporate income tax rate is going up .5 per cent to 16.5 per cent as of July 1. The small business rate stays at 10 per cent.

- * Medical Service Plan premiums are going up three per cent as of Oct. 1.

- * Overall, the new taxes are estimated to bring in an additional $800 million on a budget of $18.995 billion.

SKATES AREN'T the only items being sharpened in the province nowadays. The provincial government honed its tax take by increasing the provincial sales tax by one per cent and expanding it to cover items such as skate sharpening. That's Troy Stenquist of All Seasons putting just the right edge on.

What's down

Here's a list of some tax breaks and spending reductions from last week's provincial budget.

- * There's a sales tax credit to a maximum of $50 per year for people earning less than $30,000.

- * The provincial government says this will more than offset the increase in the sales tax for a family of four with an income of $30,000.

- * Those earning less than $30,000 a year are exempt from the three per cent increase in Medical Services Plan premiums.

- * And the provincial government says adjustments in premium assistance will eliminate them for 430,000 people.

- * The exemption level on the corporate capital tax increases to $1.25 million from $1 million.

- * The basic homeowners' grant goes up $20 to $470. For senior citizens, it's an increase of $25.

- * The environment ministry will have approximately $7 million less to spend this year than last. That's a 3.1 per cent decrease.

- * The highways ministry is taking a 10.4 per cent cut to $762.2 million. That's because construction projects are being shifted over to the new BC21 crown corporation.

- * The overall deficit for this year is calculated at $1.5 billion, a decrease over last year's $2 billion estimate.

New corporation to create work

TERRACE — Northwest residents can expect a new look to highway construction projects, construction of public buildings and to spending by provincial crown corporations as a result of last week's provincial budget.

The government is creating BC21, a crown corporation to be financed by new taxes and long term borrowing.

It'll be building highways and public buildings targeted at creating jobs in the regions and helping develop those regions.

The financing arm of BC21 for highways construction is the new B.C. Transportation Financing Authority.

Its revenue will come from the one cent a litre increase in gasoline and diesel fuel sales effective Sept. 1, a new $1.50 per day tax on short term rental vehicles.

But BC21 will also be authorized to borrow money to be paid back over a long period of time.

And it's getting money that would otherwise have gone to the highways ministry to build highways.

Although BC21 has been criticized has a way of creating debt without having it appear on the government's direct books, finance minister Glen Clark says its money the government would be spending anyway on construction projects.

Those construction projects include what the province is calling an acceleration of health care, education and justice facilities.

The province has also created a $100 million construction budget for public sector projects giving economic return to regions in which they are built.

As well, projects will encourage the use of goods and services supplied by B.C.-based businesses.

Speaking after the provincial budget was released, finance minister Glen Clark said there will be opportunities for those now on social assistance to gain work skills through BC21 projects.

"The transportation finance authority, from gas taxes, will use the money for roads in B.C. That's very good news," said

Clark.

Altogether, the new crown corporation will spend $1.42 billion, which will be borrowed, in the coming year on new public sector buildings.

Expenditures of other crown corporations to be spent in the regions will total $900 million.

Not a lot is known yet about where and when a lot of the spending will be done.

Debt worries accountants, miners

TERRACE — Miners and chartered accountants aren't happy with last week's provincial budget.

The Mining Association of B.C. says tax increases will hurt an already suffering minerals industry while the Institute of Chartered Accountants of B.C. says expenditures will continue to out-strip revenues.

"We are positive that the forecasted deficit is being reduced," said mining association president Gary Livingstone.

"Our concern is that government spending continues to increase and deficit reduction is only a result of higher taxes. These higher taxes further deteriorate our competitive position and will make it more difficult to keep, let alone attract investment in British Columbia," he said.

Livingstone did credit the province for eliminating notice of work fees and exempting from property tax mining access roads on Crown lands.

The ministry estimates the latter will save mining companies between $500,000 and $1 million a year.

"Government, whether provincial, federal or municipal, cannot continue to raise taxes to spend money they don't have," said Livingstone.

Meanwhile, Institute of Chartered Accounts of B.C. president Don Young said the budget contains no vision of revenue and expenditure plans beyond the new fiscal year.

While the government appears to be tackling the deficit, Young said it was troubling to see that the total direct and guaranteed debt of the province has increased by 32 per cent of the last two years.

He said the total debt, as of March 31 next year, is forecast at $26.4 billion.

"Expenditure reductions are needed in many areas if we are going to balance our budget soon," said Young. "The people of British Columbia must ask government for less if we are to live within our means."

Young added that the budget is silent on specific initiatives to ensure the government reduces waste and duplication and operates more effectively.

The start

The Start is for people learning how to read.

Pool people

Chris Kerman and Audrey Erb are swimmers. They belong to the Bluebacks Swim Club.

Club members held a swim marathon. They swam laps to raise money.

The members also donated to the food bank.

The budget

The provincial sales tax is going up.

It is one of several tax increases the government brought in last week.

That means the provincial sales tax is now seven per cent.

The tax increases are in the provincial government's new budget.

Gas will also cost more.

It is going up one cent a litre this fall. Diesel is going up by one cent, too.

It also costs more to smoke and to drink alcohol.

But there is some good news in the budget.

People who make less than $30,000 a year will get a credit on the sales tax.

BUSINESS REVIEW

Spring time

ARRIVAL OF warmer weather has increased outdoor activity. That's Kevin Turner of Turner Improvement from Kitwanga installing the new colours for Fountain Tire on the outside of its building.

Orenda waiting for a gov't plan

TERRACE — The provincial government is going to have to come up with a policy on corporate assistance before it can consider the Orenda Forest Products request for a $100 million loan guarantee, says company vice president Frank Foster.

That's the word the company received in talks with provincial officials, said Foster.

"All we know is the government will be coming up with a policy and that it will be soon," he added.

Orenda made the request for the loan guarantee earlier this year as part of a $500 million financing package for its planned pulp and paper mill south of Lakelse Lake.

But the province cancelled its loan and loan guarantee program for large companies in 1991 and has yet to replace it.

Last week's provincial budget didn't contain any direct news of a loan guarantee or loan program of the size Orenda wants.

But Orenda is working with a new provincial agency called the B.C. Investment Office to prepare information for an eventual presentation to cabinet.

That agency acts as a liaison between companies and the province in developing new projects.

B.C. Investment Offices have also asked to meet with Orenda's banking group.

Lorne Sivertson, who runs the investment office, said the Orenda request will first be given to an advisory body made up of public and private sector representatives for consideration.

In the meantime, Orenda officials spent the early part of March in Finland talking to companies and the government about their project.

Orenda wants to buy paper making machinery from Valmet but also wants to hire Tampella Forest Products which uses the same type of machinery Orenda wants to buy.

"Tampella Forest Products has an MFC (machine finish coated paper) mill in Finland and we're looking for expertise," said Foster.

Company officials are working on an arrangement whereby the Finnish government will guarantee up to 90 per cent of the estimated $100 million purchase price of the paper making machinery.

Foster said the Finnish guarantee isn't conditional upon the B.C. government giving its own guarantee.

And Orenda has also lined up a company to market the kind of paper it wants to produce.

Foster said that company will be looking for customers through out North America and overseas.

OUT AND ABOUT

TERRACE — Several nominations have already been received for the Terrace and District Chamber of Commerce's 1993 Business Executive of the Year award to be given June 26.

The selection committee is made up of the chamber board and there are eight criteria.

Two of those criteria are mandatory. The person must have owned or managed a business here for at least three years and that business must be profitable.

There are six other criteria assigned points in descending order.

Past winners are Malcolm Hillcove of McDonald's, Bob Wilkinson of Wilkinson Business Machines, Gerry Martin and Larry Krause of Northern Drugs, Mark and Marj Twyford of Close Up Business Services, Rod Verstrate of the Coast Inn of the West, George Clark of Terrace Travel and Eric Johanson of Canada Safeway.

The deadline for 1993 nominations is April 15.

There's an April 14 deadline for small businesses wanting space at the Terrace Home Based Business Association's spring business fair April 24 in the arena banquet room.

This is the second spring fair held by the association since it was formed five years ago. It's had a fall fair each year.

There are 25 spaces available, says association spokesman Lori Merrill.

Businesses don't have to belong to the business association but they must have City of Terrace business licences, she said.

To book space, or for more information, call 635-9415. Registration forms also available at the Terrace and District Chamber of Commerce.

Trades show will be busy

TERRACE — More than 70 businesses and organizations have signed up for the Terrace and District Chamber of Commerce's May 7-9 trade show.

The show concentrates on the forestry industry and will be complemented by a city-sponsored conference on forestry.

The week of the trade show is also National Forestry Week.

This is the first year the chamber has held a trade show. Last year the city held a trade show tied to the Minerals North conference here.

"We're extremely happy with the response. I'm sure we'll have our booth space sold out soon," said trades fair organizer Debbie McIntyre last week.

Also planned are exhibits on the forestry industry under the direction of the Terrace branch of Canadian Women in Timber, she said.

"This will be an excellent way to inform people about the industry," said McIntyre of the above exhibits.

The conference takes place in the arena and officially opens noon on May 7.

There'll be tours that afternoon of the exhibit area for those attending the conference and for school groups.

The chamber of commerce's trades fair and the one organized last year for the Minerals North conference follow in the tradition of the ones organized for years by the Terrace Jaycees.

LETTERS

TO THE TERRACE STANDARD

The white society and discrimination

Dear Sir:

This is a reply to Bill Homburg's March 24 letter.

Self-government for natives means what!!?

Where does the racism that Mr. Homburg speaks of come from? Wasn't it the white man that came and took our land? Then we were stuck into our isolations and cultural ghettos.

When you were "forced" to speak English, were you beaten and/or raped for speaking your native tongue? I think not! You use English as a second language by your own choice.

As far as the natives who live and long for the stone age, most or all the cases you mentioned still practice their stone age beliefs.

I also don't believe the desire to be high and mighty on the social ladder means much to most natives.

We were survivors by living off the land and taking only what we needed to survive. We didn't need to have more possessions than the next person to be someone.

The discrimination that you speak of was brought on by the many years of verbal and physical abuse from the white man.

Also, Mr. Homburg, when you go into a bank, store or public institution, do you walk in with your eyes closed? I have seen a good number of natives in the work force, in our beautiful community. Not to mention, they work hand in hand with the white people. Pretty racist hey!

By the way, have you ever seen any of the sawmills, band offices and fire halls on the reserves in this northern community. I would advise you to ask someone for a tour, just to show you how well natives can and will work.

It seems to me that most of the gambling halls in Canada's fine communities are owned and operated by white people. Also note that the natives that are hired by the white people to work in these halls are good, honest, clean-cut and very efficient young natives.

Where did you get the idea that we smuggle cigarettes. I recall a few months ago that a white person was caught smuggling cigarettes across the Alaskan border. I am a smoker myself, and pay the price to the white man's government as anyone else would, for this bad habit.

I'll have you know that the money we have in our pockets is earned. A lot of people think that we do not pay for our houses and cars.

I'll have you know that we do have mortgages just like the white communities. If we don't pay the mortgage we lose it just like the white people.

You speak of money without effort. I believe white people were also well known recipients of the benefits from the government for taking in native children for schooling.

Not to mention the restrictions and abuse that was forced upon these native children. The only effort I see is the trip to the bank.

Finally, Mr. Homburg, the only shame that I feel is for you, because it is you yourself that is racist. I hope that someday you will get over your racist attitude and join us in the real world.

Homburg letter said unnecessary

Dear Sir:

I am writing in response to a letter published on Wednesday March 24, 1993. It is a very non-informative, insignificant and unnecessary letter written by Mr. Bill Homburg.

I have read a number of letters such as this and have failed to identify the purpose.

I am a graduated academic native student of the area. I am taking a very intense course that deals directly with the self-government concept. Nowhere in its teachings does it even suggest apartheid and definitely not racism.

I have to stop and wonder... if natives reside in a cultural ghetto, how is it that they can unite, keep their tradition strong and survive in this day and age? Could it be a cultural haven?

My elders taught me to respect other peoples' struggles so that other people may respect my own. I have the greatest respect for those nations and peoples who have succeeded in their struggle to survive.

I will not respond to the rest of the letter because it is not in "my" best interest.

I will remind you that I am in the process of learning about self-government and I will kindly ask that if anything is taught on the subject, it may be informative and significant or may make way for a descent debate.

Log exports hurt northwest jobs

Dear Sir:

Two recent articles in The Terrace Standard on the dilemma faced by West Fraser due to the shortage of wood supply in the northwest indicates that in all likelihood there will be a necessity to lay off workers at Skeena Sawmills ("as many as 100").

Forest Minister Dan Miller is quoted as saying "there is a very serious deficit of timber to meet all of the manufacturing needs in this region".

North Coast Timber's (Eurocan) Bruce MacNicol is quoted as saying "the milling capacity will have to be reduced".

The bottom line here is that there isn't enough wood available to meet the needs of sawmills in Prince Rupert and Terrace both and harvest forecasts indicate supply is being depleted faster than it can be replaced.

The Minister of Forests seems adamant that job losses will be in Terrace and not in his riding of Prince Rupert.

Let's face the facts, there is a tremendous amount of wood that leaves this province and in fact this country every year, wood that could produce employment opportunities for a significant amount of Canadian workers, Canadian wood that keeps foreign workers gainfully employed while Canadian job opportunities continue to vanish.

An estimated 500,000 cubic meters of wood was exported from Cassiar, Nass, North Kalum and the North Coast Timber Supply Areas alone in 1992.

How much wood leaves the region through the Prince Rupert port?

Is the minister aware of the volume of wood that leaves this country through his port?

What if anything is this government prepared to do to stop the mass export of our raw materials and consequently our jobs?

Local gov'ts get higher profile in land claim talks

TERRACE — The provincial government has signed a deal with municipalities to give them an increased role in land claims negotiations.

The deal provides for more and better contact with municipalities when local government issues are involved in negotiations.

It formalizes what is already in existence between northwestern municipalities and the provincial government on the Nisga'a land claim talks.

And provincial aboriginal affairs minister Andrew Petter hopes the deal can be expanded to have municipal representatives act as observers during negotiations.

That isn't the case now with the Nisga'a talks and won't be, said Petter.

"The Nisga'a talks are underway under a framework agreement already in place," he said.

And while the province can't unilaterally include municipalities as observers, it will bring the topic up during discussions on how other claims will be negotiated, Petter added.

"We hope it would not be opposed by first nations," he said of the observer status to be sought for municipalities.

The municipalities were called "respected advisers" in the deal signed two weeks ago.

They'll be involved in issues such as land allocation to native groups, new methods of government where municipal interests are affected, land use planning, zoning and regulations that affect municipalities.

Petter cautioned that the deal does not give municipalities status as full negotiators.

He said the provincial government will continue to represent all third party interests during actual negotiations.

Union of B.C. Municipalities executive director Richard Taylor welcomed the deal, saying it recognizes that municipal governments do have a role to play.

He said the role as observer is fine because it will give municipalities a chance to give advice to the provincial government during talks.

One native leader, Joe Mathias of the First Nations Summit, last week said municipalities can't expect to act as full negotiators.

He warned that including a variety of special interests will bog down and delay negotiations.

Suspect sought

RCMP are still looking for a man suspected of raping a 15-year-old girl near the Sande Overpass the night of March 12.

Police said two witnesses observed the suspect fleeing westbound along the railway tracks towards Skeena Cellulose.

The suspect is described as a 25-year-old native man with shoulder length black hair, six-foot-two, weighing 175 - 180 lbs.

RCMP can be contacted at 638-0333.

News in brief

Kitimat hatchery salmon lost

NEARLY three million chum salmon fry had to be destroyed after a kidney viral infection outbreak at the Kitimat River Hatchery.

The fry were infected with infectious haematopoietic necrosis — a disease never before found in B.C. chum salmon.

The disease did not affect the hatchery's populations of chinook, coho, steelhead or cutthroat trout.

The hatchery did release about two million fry into the Kitimat River and Hirsch Creek.

A million chum fry were destroyed March 26. Officials subsequently decided to destroy an additional 1.7 million fry that were mildly affected by the disease to stop the outbreak.

Northwest hatcheries have begun testing for the disease and the one at Kitimat will screen eggs as a precautionary measure.

Native fish guardians get set

SIXTEEN native fishery guardians from bands across the northwest are being trained by the federal Department of Fisheries and Oceans to monitor this summer's fishing season.

The Kitsumkalum band is among those participating. New guardians have also been recruited from the Gitanmaax, Moricetown, Skidegate, Masset, Bella Coola, Haisla, Lax Kw'Alaams, Kitkatla, Kitasoo, Bella Bella, Kispiox, Gitwangak and Metlakatla bands.

Native guardians would be hired by the native bands conducting "homeland fisheries" this summer subject to agreements being negotiated with DFO.

Their duties would include fisheries monitoring, stock management, fishery enhancement and assessment, habitat protection and enforcement.

Guardians will not be armed and will not be authorized to search, arrest or use force in carrying out their enforcement functions.

Mediator called in

A MEDIATOR called in to try and settle a contract dispute between the Hospital Employees' Union (HEU) and Terraceview Lodge brings the two sides together in Vancouver April 24.

The HEU issued strike notice against Terraceview and three other long term health care facilities 10 days ago after talks stalled on wage increases. Job action isn't permitted as long as a mediator is involved.

Michael Leisinger, of the Terrace Regional Health Care Society which operates Terraceview, said wage talks have been difficult because the facilities don't yet know what their budgets are for the coming year. But he said that information might be available by the time the first mediation session starts.

The 57 full and part time Terraceview workers and those at the three other long term care facilities want wage parity with workers at provincially-run facilities.

One complicating factor is financing retroactive wage increases by the time a contract is settled, said Leisinger. "We don't know if the retro will be fully covered (by the provincial government) or not," he said.

8 Glasses A Day Water Facts

FLUID RETENTION

What is the best way to get rid of excess fluid? When the body is deprived of fluid, it perceives this as a threat and tries to store every drop. This results in swollen feet, legs and hands.

Diuretics are only a temporary solution. The best way to overcome the problem of water retention, according to Dr. D. Robertson MS., MSc. is to give your body what it needs, - plenty of good, clean water. Only then will the stored water be released.

If water retention is a constant problem, the cause may be excess salt. The more salt you eat, the more water you require to dilute it.

To get rid of excess salt, drink lots of water. As the water is forced through the kidneys, the excess sodium is taken away!

Gov't increases powers on native hunting, fishing

TERRACE — Conservation officers now have more power to crack down on abuses of native hunting and fishing rights.

New provincial guidelines have been issued that continue to give natives first priority to take fish and wildlife for sustenance except where conservation of stocks is a concern.

But now conservation officers will be able to investigate incidents when:

- Threatened or endangered species are killed.
- Animals are killed when there is no open season at any time of the year in the area for that species.
- Fish are taken where are seasonal angling closure is in place to protect vulnerable concentrations of spawning fish.
- No traditional use of the species can be demonstrated.
- Public safety is threatened by activities.

- Fish or wildlife are killed in excessive numbers, or abandoned and left to waste.

- Hunting or fishing is done for commercial purposes, without authorization of a license, permit or treaty.

- Hunting or fishing is done outside an established open season, outside of the traditional territory of the First Nation to which the harvesting individual belongs.

- Hunting or fishing violates a formal cooperative management agreement between the environment ministry and the native group.

If an investigation leads to prosecution, such cases will be handled specially, the guidelines state.

Environment ministry regional officials would determine if native authorities had been properly consulted in advance about the ministry's resource management objectives.

Where charges are recommended, prosecutors would refer the case up to the executive Crown counsel and the charge would only proceed with that official's approval in accordance with the policies of the Criminal Justice Branch.

The guidelines also set up a process for negotiating with native communities the numbers of animals they as a community can take.

Public pressure from a series of incidents this winter helped spur the change.

One high profile case involved the shooting of a world class bighorn sheep in the Kootenays.

And in the northwest, natives were criticized for the shooting of moose out of season this winter.

There's also an ongoing investigation into the role of some native and non-native hunters from Terrace in last year's massive kill of plains bison in the Fort St. John area.

What Are Reference Sets?

Students, parents, and teachers want to understand what students are able to do and how they are progressing. Reference sets are being developed in British Columbia to help people focus on student performance. They provide a framework for understanding and talking about student learning.

Reference sets are based on observations and work samples from many students throughout British Columbia. They include descriptions, samples of work, and comments about what students are able to do as they become more proficient in the area described by the reference set. Reference sets may be used across curriculum areas with students from the Primary years through the Graduation years. As of Spring 1993, there will be a reference set available for writing. This reference set will describe student development from the beginning stages of writing to the more complex or mature stages.

Reference sets are being developed by teachers throughout British Columbia. They give students, parents, and teachers a common focus and way to talk about learning and progress during parent conferences and reporting. They can become part of portfolio assessment and self-assessment when students and teachers are thinking about how and what students are learning, and when they are setting goals for future learning.

Although reference sets can be a focus for examining and talking about student learning, actual learning and development is complex. Students will always learn in different ways and at different rates. Descriptions in the reference sets are presented as stages of growth, even though development does not necessarily happen in regular stages. Students will likely show characteristics of different descriptions at different times and in different settings. Evaluation of student performance should be based on information gathered over time, in different ways, and in different settings.

Reference sets cannot easily show how students really learn. Performance can vary depending on a number of factors. Some of these can be the extent of their knowledge, their ability to discuss and research what they are doing, the importance and interest of the topic to them and the purpose of their learning.

As with all assessment strategies, reference sets are used to make decisions to support how students are learning. Reference sets can also provide information about patterns of performance and about standards that can be useful in evaluating learning.

Teachers and students from School District 88 (Terrace) contributed to the development of the reference set for writing. Other reference sets are being developed in reading, listening, speaking, and problem-solving. These will be available for use in the future.

Speed kills

TERRACE — Nearly 32 per cent of motor vehicle crashes resulting in death or injury in 1991 involved unsafe speeds, says the Insurance Corporation of British Columbia.

And that's more than the provincial average of 20 per cent.

The statistics show there were 123 crashes tied to unsafe speeds that resulted in death or injuries.

In the northwest, there were 487 crashes resulting in death or injury for 27.7 per cent of all motor vehicle accidents.

Provincial figures show a slight increase from 1982 — when 17.2 per cent of crashes resulted in death or injury to 1991.

The figures were released as part of an April 7-14 campaign by police to crack down on those who drive too fast.

The campaign is keyed to Easter, the first long weekend of the year.

At the same time, a study indicates that young drivers are influenced to drive fast by television automobile commercials.

Television commercial viewers aged 16 to 22 "typically perceive that drivers shown in car ads are accelerating rapidly, swerving around curves, speeding, driving in a risky manner. Most say ... these portrayals look safe rather than dangerous," says the study done by the AAA Foundation for Traffic Safety.

"Thus, the risky driving portrayals that occur in these commercials are being noticed by young drivers, who regard the depicted behaviours as exciting yet safe," it continued.

Hatchery to close

TERRACE — The Deep Creek fish hatchery will close its doors in early June.

Terrace Salmonid Enhancement Society (TSES) president Doug Webb made that announcement last week following news the federal Department of Fisheries and Oceans was pulling the plug on the operation.

The future of the society-operated hatchery has been in doubt since June of last year when it was told its annual contracts DFO contracts would not be renewed.

Following a storm of public protest, petitions of support for the hatchery and a letter-writing campaign aimed at federal Fisheries minister John Crosbie, the DFO relented to some extent, coming up with grants totalling $51,000.

However, officials warned the society at that time there was no commitment to provide any money beyond March 31 of this year.

In an effort at compromise, TSES proposed a significantly scaled down hatchery operation and to raise $40,000 itself towards the cost of running it.

As a result, Webb said this year's grant request for the Deep Creek facility was for only $52,000, less than half the previous amount.

However, the DFO rejected the application, agreeing only to renew a $60,000 contract to count Kalum river system chinook.

However, that contract is quite separate from the hatchery operation and therefore the $60,000 doesn't help keep Deep Creek open.

Therefore, Webb said, the society had to lay off Jorma Jyrkanen, its sole employee, last week and is now totally dependent on volunteers.

And, with 400,000 chinook and coho fry still at the hatchery, those volunteers are badly needed.

Webb said the fry would be fed and monitored until they were large enough to be nose tagged and released.

That would likely occur in the first week of June, he added. That done, Deep Creek would close its doors.

In the meantime, "Money is desperately needed for fish and for any chance of doing enhancement work this year," Webb emphasized.

TSES has received donations of $1,300 from the local fishing guide organization, $200 from the Steelhead Society and individual donations of up to $100.

It is also holding a raffle to raise more money.

Webb said TSES would be holding a public meeting Thursday, April 15 to discuss its future.

Anti-Kemanoites get gov't money

TERRACE — The province will give native and public interest groups up to $250,000 to help them participate in the public review of the Kemano Completion Project.

"Broad public participation leads to better decisions and ultimately benefits everyone," energy minister Anne Edwards said. "Public interest groups and natives should not be excluded from this review due to a lack of resources."

The first round of public hearings on the B.C. Utilities Commission review of Alcan's billion-dollar hydroelectric project came to Kitimat on Monday. There are sessions elsewhere.

Alcan has said it won't resume construction until new uncertainties created by the review are resolved.

Groups must meet a set of criteria set out by the government to be eligible for money.

The special grants would enable groups to pay for: hiring of experts to testify at the review; travel, meals and accommodation at government union rates; childcare up to $50 a day; $175 per day for anyone who loses income or experiences hardship to participate in the review.

The Easter Sealer

Easter Seals mean Happy Faces.

Child Development Centres help children with disabilities be proud of their achievements. It's easy to see the pride on Annalies Auto's face as her therapist Margaret Chafe looks on.

What's the Appeal behind Easter Seals?

Who builds Easter Seal Houses and Easter Seal Camps? Who supplies Easter Seal Buses? Who provides Patient Care Grants? Who supports Child Development Centres? That WHO is YOU, when you donate to the Easter Seal Appeal and use your Easter Seals on every piece of mail you and your family send out from your home and office.

Without your Easter Seal donation, countless disabled children in virtually every community in BC would have nowhere to turn for transportation, recreation, social and medical rehabilitation. Last year alone, nearly 2,000 disabled British Columbians rode Easter Seal Buses daily to schools, hospitals and treatment centres. Over 7,000 people from all over BC and the Yukon lives at Camp Squamish, Camp Winfield and Camp Shannigan. Please make your Easter Seal donation again this year to ensure that these enriching experiences continue.

It's my "Easter Seal Holiday Hotel!"

Who puts a Mom or a Dad at the bedside of a critically ill child? That WHO is YOU! It's people just like you who have helped build our Easter Seal Houses in Vancouver and Prince George that accommodate families with children undergoing hospital treatment.

Mrs. Cathy Waddington from Port Alberni on Vancouver Island is one such Mom. Her young daughter Nicole has been coming to the Easter Seal House in Vancouver ever since it was built in 1985.

"She loves it", exclaims Mrs. Waddington. "There's lots of toys, she meets some neat kids. They all go to the hospital, too. It's really great, because they have all the facilities there and it's good to meet other kids and their parents who've got problems that we talk over. Sometimes you hear about really good doctors, and that's interesting and useful." "They're great here. On Nicole's birthday, they give her cake and a present. Nicole calls it her Easter Seal Holiday Hotel!"

The New Lions Laser Skin Centre Easter Seals mean Happy Faces.

This year, when you donate and use your Easter Seals, you're bringing even more happiness to the faces of many children in BC who, until now, have been affected at birth with Port-Wine Stains, birth marks and other skin disorders. That's because your generosity has allowed us to establish the Lions Laser Skin Centre at Vancouver General Hospital, where your gifts have funded the purchase of two high technology lasers that virtually eliminate these marks. And what could be better than a child with a happy face?

MOTORISTS TRAVELLING Hwy 16 between Terrace and Prince Rupert will be better able to read important messages now that new signs just outside both cities have been installed. The new signs cost $500,000 and are more efficient and versatile than the ones they replace.

New highways signs give better messages

TERRACE — Two new highway information signs here and in Prince Rupert should be flashing messages soon, says a highways ministry spokesman. Erected over the past couple of weeks the new signs are more versatile and are cheaper to operate, says Roger Reimche. "The old ones allowed us only one line of characters. Now we have two lines," he said.

And they can be programmed to run any kind of message on highway conditions or other important notes for motorists. "But the big benefit is cost. They use daylight illumination during the day and at night only a few electric lights are needed through fibre optics," said Reimche. That's much different than the old signs which used 720 light bulbs each at a cost of $5 for each bulb. Reimche estimated the yearly bulb replacement cost at more than $20,000 once labour was taken into account. He said the new messages will also be far more visible in the daytime than the old ones. Battery backup power is also available for up to eight hours if there is a power outage. Reimche said the cost of the two new signs, including installation, is $500,000.

Third party in on dispute

TERRACE — School District 88 and its teachers will try mediation to solve their contract dispute.

Labour Relations Board negotiator Barb Sharp has been booked for sessions on April 20 and 21.

She's the same mediator who failed in efforts to resolve the Kitimat school district dispute.

Sharp walked out of the talks there and Kitimat teachers have subsequently taken a strike vote.

"I have some reservations as to her abilities to be effective," said Terrace District Teachers' Union president Cathy Lambright.

She said the Labour Relations Board mediators — who are appointed to a given dispute — have had little success this year.

"The number of LRB people who have booked out of disputes is phenomenal," she said. "The only notable success they've had this year has been New Westminster."

School district superintendent Frank Hamilton said the attractive part about LRB mediation is the price tag.

"This mediation is at no cost whereas private mediation is extremely expensive," he noted. "We're not going to private mediation."

Teachers voted unanimously March 24 to call for the appointment of a mediator.

Lambright said the union executive elected to try mediation before taking the step of holding a strike vote.

"We'd just as soon not take any confrontational action yet," she said.

The school board is presently offering a wage increase package of 2.3 per cent in the first year and 1.8 per cent in the second year.

The union's last demand included pay increases of 2.3 per cent in each of the two years and key changes to articles governing the mainstreaming of special education children and class sizes.

THE PRIDE of the Sixth Terrace Cubs, Mike Watts (above), shows off the first-place trophy he won Saturday at the Terrace district Kub Kar Rally. Ken Adair took second place and Keith Fifeid took third. They and nearly 60 other local cubs carefully carved their own cars out of a block of wood and then raced them down a curved track at the Kin Hut. Leader Eric Harkonnen, at top right, was in charge of releasing the cars. Bottom right: cubs look on in anticipation of next race.

Getting ready for Salt Water Moon

Contributed
FINAL preparations are underway for Terrace Little Theatre's dinner theatre production of Salt Water Moon.

Six evenings of dining and entertainment will be presented at the Terrace Curling Club on School Street from Apr.16-18 and Apr.21-23.

Written by Canadian playwright David French, the play is set on a starlit night at Coley's Point, Newfoundland in August, 1926.

Eighteen-year-old Jacob Mercer has returned from Toronto to the tiny fishing village, hoping to win back his former sweetheart, Mary Snow.

But Mary is engaged to wealthy

Jerome McKenzie, the son of Jacob's arch-enemy.

Mary is still hurt and bewildered by Jacob's abrupt departure a year earlier and she won't be wooed easily. Jacob will not be deterred, however, as he attempts to rekindle the spark of their past relationship.

The parts of Jacob and Mary are played by local newlyweds John and Maria McGowan.

Maria originally hails from Nova Scotia and John went to university there which has helped them master the enchanting maritime accents required for the parts.

John is a veteran of Terrace Little Theatre, having performed in four productions over the past two years.

Maria is new to TLT as well as to acting.

"I've really enjoyed working on a production with John and I've learned a great deal from him and our director, Merry Hallson," said Maria.

Both John and Maria are happy to be working together for a change although their life is quite consumed by rehearsals and memorizing lines.

"During other shows, I spent so much time at rehearsals we hardly got to see each other," John recalls. "This is a great switch!"

A distinct maritime accent is required for these parts and both John and Maria have enjoyed the research involved in preparing for their roles.

Parts of the 1926 Newfoundland language required some looking into. The McGowans found a tremendous resource in local resident Jim Callanan, who grew up in Newfoundland. They also made good use of a dictionary of Newfoundland terms.

The dinner side of the event is being handled by the Terrace Curling Club. They will be catering a buffet dinner each night of the performances.

The doors will open at 6:30 with dinner being served at 7:00 and the show will follow at around 8:30.

Tickets are $20 and available at Carter's Jewellers, Bank of Montreal and the Terrace Curling Club. Seating is limited and this show will not be held over.

PROVIDE A WINDOW
TO PAST

Stepping into a corridor filled with displays at Uplands Elementary School these days is like stepping into a time machine.

Several students there took part in the travelling Heritage Photo Display of the Historical Society of British Columbia.

Nine-year-old Tina Bulleid was one of the young participants in the trip back to our past.

"I went to my grandma's house and she gave me that picture," she says, pointing to the photo of her grandmother astride a horse at the age of 12.

Kelsey Hamer says she found out her great grandfather used to live on Ferry Island.

A total of five Uplands students have Terrace area heritage photos in the display.

The Heritage Photo Display is being shown at Uplands Elementary School through until April 12.

After that the display moves on to schools in Vanderhoof, Fernie, Nelson, Nanaimo and Victoria.

From railways to cleaning

"Here 'n There"

by Yvonne Moen

AFTER MUCH deliberation and consideration, John and Hilda Smaha started Terrace's first dry cleaning establishment in 1951.

The original Terrace Dry Cleaners location at 4544 Lakelse Ave. is today the home of Carlyle Shepherd and Co.

John and Hilda worked together there for many long hard hours for many years.

John drove everyone hard and himself probably the hardest.

He passed away peacefully at his home on Saturday, March 6, 1993 at the age of 80. He died of cancer.

John Smaha was born Aug. 15, 1912 in a small village near the city of Lvov in the Ukraine.

His parents were Michael and Anna Smaha. One of his four sisters is dead, but the other three are still living in the Ukraine — Katharina, Mary and Stefka.

John had trained as a tailor in the old country. His father came to Canada in 1928 to work for the railway. John joined his father in Canada in the spring of 1930 at the age of 17.

He had travelled from Belgium to Halifax then landed at Jasper on Good Friday.

He travelled to the Rush Valley section near McBride on Apr. 19, 1930 and started working there for the Canadian National Railway.

John worked on tie gangs for about three months.

Life was not easy for a young immigrant in those days and John had some very interesting and humorous stories to tell of his early days in Canada.

John was a temporary section man for 10 years and John — who couldn't read or write English — had to take his section foreman exams orally.

He received the second highest mark in Canada at that time.

In the fall of 1935 he came to settle at Vanarsdol Station. During the flood of 1936 he had to live in a box car because the high water had washed away the earth from under the station.

It was there that he met and married a pretty and sweet young lady from Copper City named Hilda Gildner.

She was the daughter of Emil and Paulie Gildner, who had settled at Copper City in 1932.

They later moved to Hazelton to work at Wrinch Memorial Hospital.

On June 30, 1938, John and Hilda were married in Terrace.

John was the section man at Telegraph Point, working there for the railway for 21 years.

He later took a six month leave from the CNR and in 1951 they started their business — Terrace Dry Cleaners.

John had tried his hand at everything from butchering and selling beef, to prospecting, to manual logging. And he succeeded at everything.

He retired in 1976 and they did much travelling.

He returned several times to his homeland and helped his sisters in the Ukraine to have a quality of life they impossible without his help.

John in 1941 established the Elks Club and also helped to establish the first curling rink.

They had three daughters and two sons — Marie, Jack, Linda, Ronnic, and Carolyn. He also leaves behind a dozen grandchildren and three and a half great-grandchildren.

JOHN SMAHA died peacefully at home in his favourite chair March 6 at the age of 80. He died of cancer.

He had undergone cancer treatment for the past year. And on March 6, at the age of 80, John Smaha passed away at home in his favourite chair.

Beware of supplements

WHEN MOST people talk about substance abuse, they're thinking about alcohol, drugs or tobacco.

A lot of other potentially hazardous substances can be included in that description: too much fat, too much sodium, or too many cups of coffee.

But what about some of the so-called healthy things we do for ourselves?

Many people don't know the risks of taking supplements.

The marketing of vitamin and mineral supplements is a multi-million dollar industry that plays on people's fear of disease and their hopes of quick cures.

Why do people buy supplements? Some think that modern agricultural soils are depleted of nutrients and that food grown in such soils will also be nutrient deficient. But, soil samples are taken periodically, and any deficiencies are replenished with organic or chemical fertilizers.

For Example: a carrot needs certain nutrients to become a carrot. If the soil lacks a needed nutrient, the carrot will not grow to become a normal sized carrot.

People often buy supplements to improve their nutrition. They may hope that by doing this, they can improve their health.

There are certain times of life where supplements can help people meet their needs for certain vitamins and minerals. These include such times as infancy, pregnancy, and illness.

Nutrition Notes by Gerry Kasten

But some people spend large amounts of their income on something that cannot guarantee health and may even be harmful.

There's a lot of concern about fads in mega-dose therapy. This is the practice of taking large doses of vitamins, like vitamin A, D, C, or B₆. There are definite health risks involved in taking too much of these.

Too much vitamin D can lead to having too much calcium in your blood. That can lead to kidney stones and can even contribute to osteoporosis as calcium is robbed from your bones.

Too much vitamin C can also lead to kidney stones. Excess B₆ can lead to nerve problems and even memory loss.

There are also health risks in taking too many fish oil supplements, individual amino acids, or non-nutrient items like guar gum supplements.

A recent example of such risks were people who developed Eosinophilia-Myalgia Syndrome (EMS), a severe nerve disorder, after taking Tryptophan, an amino acid supplement.

One of those people was Kilmat goalie Mark Fitzpatrick whose NHL career with the New York Islanders was nearly destroyed by EMS.

If you feel that you must take a supplement as an insurance, my recommendation is to take a multiple vitamin supplement.

Look for one with small doses of vitamins, rather than big mega-doses. A good indication that a pill is too big a dose is if it is marked For Therapeutic Use anywhere on the label.

No one should take a single vitamin or single mineral supplement without a physician's advice.

Eating a wide variety of foods is the best (and least expensive) way to meet your nutrient needs and lead a healthy, disease-free lifestyle.

In the swim

NEARLY $2,500 was raised by the Terrace Bluebacks Swim Club as a result of a marathon swim March 27. The club donated 10 per cent of the proceeds to the Terrace Anti-Poverty Group Society's shelter project and each of the 36 swimmers that turned out donated an item to the food bank. Pictured here are Audrey Erb and Chris Kerman. Swimmers either spent two hours in the water or swam 200 laps, whichever came first.

THANKS!

The Terrace unit of the Canadian Cancer Society wishes to thank the employees and members of the many local businesses and organizations for their outstanding support during Daffodil Days 1993. Due to the overwhelming popularity of the daffodils, the Cancer Society is planning an even bigger celebration next year. Enjoy your daffodils!

Be careful with flood debris

Contributed by the Skeena Health Unit

Flood waters are usually contaminated and should be handled accordingly.

After contact with farmyards, manure piles, refuse heaps, outhouses and other sources of disease, flood waters become heavily contaminated and create potential health hazards.

Persons should not occupy flooded homes until cleanup has been completed and arrangements have been made for a supply of safe water and for satisfactory disposal of human wastes and garbage. If you are in any doubt about these issues, contact your local Health Unit.

If your home is in an area served by a public water-supply system, it is very probable that the water supply will be safe. If it is not, you will be notified locally.

If your water supply comes from your own well, you must assume that the water is contaminated until bacteriological tests show the water to be safe. If the water in the well appears to be clear, it may be used following boiling or disinfection by chlorination. For example, one drop of household per litre of clear water, two drops for cloudy water and let stand for 30 minutes.

All movable furnishings should be taken outside. All woodwork should be thoroughly cleaned with soap and water. Upholstered furniture that has been in contact with water should be left outside to dry thoroughly (direct sunlight has a strong disinfecting power).

The floors and surfaces in home that have been flooded should be thoroughly cleaned and scrubbed as soon as possible after the water has receded. After surfaces have been cleaned of mud and silt, they should be washed with a sterilizing chloride of lime solution (mix one pound of chloride of lime to six-10 gallons of water). Commercial laundry bleaches containing five per cent available chlorine may be used as an alternative (mix two quarts of bleach to six-10 gallons of water).

In pumping basements, care must be taken not to pump the basements too quickly; water in the surrounding soil may cause the collapse of basement walls and/or uplifting of basement floors. Once the water has left the basement, immediately remove all the accumulated silt and mud. This may require the use of a hose, buckets of water, and rough scrubbing.

Remove all portable effects (such as stored furniture, etc.) Encourage drying by opening all windows; if possible, apply heat via a furnace or stove. All surfaces that have been exposed to flood waters should be disinfected by brushing on a chlorine solution as described above.

Cleanup and disinfecting procedures should be extended to all sheds, garages and other buildings where goods are stored. In particular, utensils used for the preparation, preservation or storage of food should be thoroughly washed soaked in a chlorine solution.

High water will have flooded outhouses pits, making a potentially dangerous source of contamination to local water supplies. If the outhouse building remains in place it may be used as soon as the water has left the surface of the ground.

But in order to eliminate the risk of contaminating the water table, it is advisable to empty the contents of one pound of fresh chloride of lime (or two quarts of five per cent bleach) into the pit every three or four day for as long as water remains in the pit. If the outhouse building has been washed away, a new one should be built as soon as possible. Open outhouse pits should be covered to prevent accidents.

In most instances, flooding will not seriously affect septic tanks. It may, however, cause damage to the sewage-disposal field if the system is used before flood waters recede below the distribution trenches.

Stylish family home designed for corner lot

By M. Tynan

An interesting angular design complemented by the addition of corner and corner bay windows can be appreciated from the front and right view. A side entrance leads into an equally attractive living environment.

A two storey high ceiling adds a dramatic touch to an already spacious foyer. The den boasts a stylish corner bay window, and, set close to the front entrance and apart from the rest of the home, could be an ideal home office. An arched entrance leads into the living room which provides a cosy fireplace and plenty of room to arrange furnishings to your liking. The dining room, partially open to the living room, can be closed off from the kitchen by a sliding pocket door. This semi-private area features a boxed out space for the hutch and a fashionable corner window. The cook in the family will enjoy an efficient working layout in the kitchen, complete with plenty of cupboard and counter space and pantry. The nook is extra large, and is separated only by a railing from the sunken family room.

Upstairs, all three bedrooms are a good size. The master features his and hers closets and a four piece ensuite with a raised whirl-tub. The games room will accommodate a variety of games equipment, and features a boxed out window seat.

Plans for U-815 may be obtained for $445.00 for a set of five complete sets of working prints and $39.00 catalogue for $13.85 including postage and handling and 7% GST.

SOLID REASONS for SOLID WALLS

Before building your new home check out the NASCOR Solid Wall System.

at Spruce Capital Homes

These are just a few of the reasons you'll enjoy long term comfort, long term security and long term environmental benefits when you build with NASCOR walls!

LONG TERM SECURITY because:

- Worth more now, worth more at re-sale
- Rigid structural system stays square and firm
- Computer designed to meet or exceed all applicable building codes
- Safe, fire-tested insulation
- Expanded Polystyrene (EPS) insulation cannot sag or settle
- Rodents, insects and other creatures cannot nest in EPS
- Walls are condensation free - EPS is waterproof
- EPS cannot rot

LONG TERM COMFORT because:

- NASCOR walls are airtight. Save up to 50% on energy costs every year!
- Solid walls are sound attenuating, dramatically reducing traffic and neighbour noise
- Doors and windows fit now and fit later

ENVIRONMENTALLY BETTER because:

- No short insulation fibres to become airborne in your home
- EPS is non-allergenic, does not produce dust
- EPS is non-toxic, emits no gases
- No old growth wood needed in structural component design
- No wasted materials on job site, no disposal problems
- EPS is re-cyclable
- Major energy savings year after year
- No chlorofluorocarbons to affect ozone layer

BUILDER BENEFITS because:

- Price and delivery are guaranteed
- Can be erected in a fraction of the time needed for conventional framing
- Structure closes in, locks up quickly
- Potential theft of building materials is reduced
- Electrical and plumbing systems go in quickly and cleanly, anywhere you want
- Very flexible design, windows where you want them
- Significant reduction in call-backs from nail-popping and wall cracks
- Structure is glued and screwed into engineered units that are easy to erect

Kozak survives sixth end scare for win

Unbeatable. That was George Kozak's rink as they took 'A' event in this year's Terrace Totem Mixed bonspiel.

But their final game was a lot closer than the 11-3 scoreline suggested.

Playing fellow Terracite Fred Martens, Kozak's foursome were only one clear going into the fourth end.

Lying one, Martens threw a deep guard with his last stone, forcing Kozak to go to the in-turn on his hammer shot.

Although the entire end had been played on the other side of centre, Kozaks made no mistake with either ice or weight, punching the red counter between two of his own at the back to take three and a 6-2 lead.

A steal of one in the next widened the gap, but Martens was still to get a chance to get back into the game.

Applying pressure from early in the sixth end, he got his break when Kozak's last shot chip attempt was overswept, leaving Martens counting only one but with other rocks in the house.

That meant chipping out Kozak's lone occupant could translate to four or five depending on whether the shooter stuck.

However, Martens came up a touch light, the rock swung too far and he had to settle for the single.

Let off the hook, Kozak's rink put it away next end with a four that had Martens shaking hands early.

Kozak, Cheryl Fisher, Andy Hoffman and Sandra Hoffman had earlier knocked off Gordie Olson in the semis giving Olson third spot.

There were early finishes in two of the remaining three events as well.

'B' winners Kelly Houlden (skip), Kathy Gardiner, Larry Turney and Susan Viveiros were merciless, scoring in every end as they dispatched Mitch Griffith's foursome 8-0 in six.

Over on sheet five, Diana English's rink picked up a single in the second to make it 2-1 only to have Dave Dennis' quartet explode for seven unanswered points in the next three ends.

That game too was called after six leaving Dennis, Denise Sawtell, Glen Thomsen and Karin Parker with the 'D' event title.

'C' event finalists, however, got full value for their entry money with the outcome in doubt right up to the last delivery.

Dennis Fugere's steal of two in the third had given his rink a 4-2 lead and appeared to put them in the driving seat.

However, Kevin McDougall's crew dug in, a two in the sixth tying it up at five.

Facing three opposition counters with his seventh end hammer, Fugere pulled off a pretty raise to go into the last 6-5 up.

His rink quickly got a rock into the back of the four foot and from there concentrated on throwing up guards.

As a result, McDougall found himself between a rock and a hard place when it came to his final stone: either a long raise requiring pinpoint accuracy or wicking off one of his own out in the 12 foot and coming across to take out Fugere's counter.

He chose the latter and almost pulled it off, making contact with the shot rock but not solidly enough to move it out.

The 7-5 win was also pay back time for Fugere, Nancy Fugere, Maurice Bulleid and Jennifer Quinn who had lost in an extra end to McDougall in their spiel's opener.

Mark Hoefling took third in 'C' and Ron Murphy fourth, Dan Smith and Roger L'Heureux rounding out the placings in 'D'.

Record run for Rupert

With the sun in their face and the wind at their backs, Prince Rupert runners sliced 25 minutes off the record to win this year's Terrace-Prince Rupert relay road race.

This year's event, the 4th annual, event attracted runners from Smithers, Hazelton and the newly formed Nass Valley club to an event which has until now been just a Terrace-Prince Rupert duel.

Heading out from Skeena Jr. Secondary at 7 a.m., Saturday March 27, the five teams kept close order for the first hour.

However, Prince Rupert eventually opened up a lead that only Smithers were to seriously challenge.

The Smithereens managed to get within six minutes of the coastal team at one point, but Prince Rupert turned it on as they neared home to double that gap and finish in a record breaking time of 9 hours, 12 minutes.

Meanwhile, nearly an hour back Hazelton and Terrace were involved in a battle which saw the former open up a 2.5km gap.

However, Terrace began to steadily close, setting up an exciting finish which saw the two teams exchanging the lead within the last 400m of the race.

Producing the better finishing kick, Terrace managed to edge Hazelton out in the last 100m, crossing the line in 10hrs. 18mins.

Taking up the rear, but not far back, were the Nass valley team.

Essentially a fun event, the relay officially launched the '93 running season which continues April 18 with the Prince Rupert Half-Marathon or two-member team relay.

That gets under way at 1 p.m. from the Civic Centre.

Silver strike

Three titles and a couple of near misses.

That was the local boxing club's tally at this year's Silver Gloves, held March 26-27 in Vancouver.

Aaron Petovello took one of the trio of top spots in the 125lb. Intermediate Novice division, earning a 4-1 decision over Jesse Moxley of Quesnel.

In all northwest match, Brian Gervais overwhelmed Don Price of Prince Rupert in the 156lb. Junior 'C' Novice bout, the judges scoring it 5-0.

And Darren Bell rounded it out without even climbing into the ring, being unopposed in the 156lb. Intermediate Open.

Coach Jeff Dilley said he'd tried to fix Bell up with a bout against one of the less experienced Senior division fighters.

However, "They wouldn't have anything to do with him, they figured he (Bell) had just too much experience for them."

Buddy Doane got as close as you can get to a victory, coming out on the wrong end of a 3-2 split decision against Tom Harper of Comox in the 139lb. Junior 'C' Novice class.

Short of competition in his division, Robert Doane, 125lb., moved up to the 132lb. Intermediate Open where he scored a 4-1 decision over Dale Coulson of the Nicola Valley.

That set up a meeting with Paul Shaw of the Queensboro club for the Gloves.

Emphasizing the disadvantage of the weight difference, Dilley said Doane fought well but "just ran out of gas" against an experienced fighter who will represent B.C. at this year's nationals.

However, he said the bout was valuable because it provided excellent experience for Doane.

FAST AND FURIOUS. Thornhill Jr. Secondary was the scene of fast-paced action all weekend as northwestern badminton players smashed, volleyed and lobbed their way through the Terrace club's open tournament. Above, Serge St. Laurent of Prince Rupert goes for the point in men's singles play. See next week's Standard for full results.

Winning decade for Cal's birders

For ten straight years, Caledonia's badminton team has proved unstoppable when it comes to zone competition.

And though the team may not have come back from the provincials with a championship during that spell, they've come as close as you can get.

That was in 1989, recalled coach Robert Cooper, when Terrace finished runner-up.

Three years earlier they'd made the final four and overall, Cooper pointed out Caledonia has five top-eight finishes.

And that, he suggested, is a record unmatched in northwestern school sports.

Perhaps the most disappointing years have been those where the victorious zone teams have had to pass on the provincials.

Cooper explained the rules require a team have six girls and six boys. The year they started the decade of domination, Cal was short on both counts.

Two years ago, it was a lack of female players that kept them at home. Although there were excellent junior secondary girls available, Cooper said badminton is the only sport that does not allow younger players to be drafted to make up the numbers.

There were no such problems this year, but the team ran into two others with the draw.

The tournament format sees the 16 teams divided into four groups of four for the round-robin, the top two from each advancing.

Cal found themselves in the same group as Sentinel and North Surrey, the eventual champions and fourth placed team respectively.

"The pool left us an impossible task," Cooper said.

Sentinel, who play out of the Vancouver Lawn and Tennis Club and receive professional coaching twice a week, included the number two ranked boy and number five ranked girl in Canada, he added.

Although Cal went down 11-0, 11-0, 9-2 when the two met, Cooper pointed out Sentinel did that to just about everyone they met, even in the final games.

North Surrey handed Cal their second defeat, 8-3, but that scoreline was deceptive, several matches going the full three games with the outcome decided by only a point or two.

Cal picked up their lone win against Richmond, 8-3, earning a berth in the playoff game to settle ninth and eleventh where they were just edged out 6-5.

Overall, Cooper was well pleased with the team's effort. "They played really well," he said. "With a different draw they could have definitely finished in the top eight."

Carrying the Cal colours at the championship were Paula McKay, Jasmine Peleon, Mag Huguon, Sherry Postluck, Laurie Bulcau, Cathy Dickson, Shane Holland, Bao Van Diep, Greg Reinaldi, Jake Kirby, Mike McAllister and Derek Muller.

Helping Cooper with the coaching duties was Dave Comfort, who will likely take over the team next year when Cooper takes a year's sabbatical.

Cooper said three boys and three girls will be returning next year and the word is there are several fine male players coming up from the junior ranks.

His only concern was the problem of insufficient female players might arise again.

Timberrrrrr!

A shutout performance by goalie Gerry Lamming paced Northern Motor Inn Okies to this year's Old-timer division playoff title in recreational league hockey action March 25.

And it only took 66 seconds for the Okies offence to score what would prove to be the winning goal in their 2-0 defeat of the Terrace Timbermen.

On a feed from Joe Duben, Ken Gordon broke down the left wing and sent the puck to the front of the net where Roger Harris gave Timbermen net-minder Rick Marko no chance.

Although the fired up Okies controlled the game for the next several minutes, Lamming was forced to start earning his shutout seven and half minutes in, coming up with a big save to deprive Ken Olson of the equalizer.

The Okies were also lucky to escape a penalty immediately afterwards for too many men on the ice when the error went unnoticed.

With 10 minutes gone the Okies pressed again, Marko pulling off a superb glove save against Duben at point blank range.

However, there was no stopping the next NMI break, Gordon intercepting a clearing attempt and going in alone to make it 2-0 at the 13:35 mark.

Gordon had another chance four minutes later after a great move at the blueline set him free but he miscued on the shot and Marko was able to smother the puck.

Seconds later it was the post's turn to come to the Timbermen's rescue on a blast from the point.

It wasn't all one way traffic, though, Rino Michaud cutting off a cross-ice pass to go in alone with 10 minutes left. However, he couldn't stuff it under Lamming.

Another brilliant save by Marko and disciplined penalty killing over the last three minutes of the period got the Timbermen out of the first still down by only two.

In the opening seconds of the second and final period, Joe Whitney tried to get the Timbermen back in the game but his shot whistled just wide.

It was that kind of night for the regular season champion Timbermen.

In end to end action, their attacks too often broke down once within range of the Okies goal and when they did click, Lamming was able to slam the door shut.

Hank Randrup twice set up good scoring threats only to see the opportunity go unconverted.

Apart from the constant threat posed by Gordon and the stonewalling of its defensive corps, the Okies also got a solid game out of Larry Payjack.

Local Ju-Jitsu club dominates tourney

Terrace's Ju-Jitsu club members took 12 gold medals out of a possible 15 at their annual tournament, held Mar. 27-28.

In youth competitions held Saturday, Leeland Sturko led the way with top spot in the Pee Wee (4-6 years old) division, finishing ahead of clubmate Eric Turner.

Ryan Mitchell kept up the golden pace in Pee Wee Junior (7-9 years) as Terrace swept the medals.

Stavros Darvoudis (juniors) added another while Dustin Haigh beat off a Kitimat challenge to win the Teen division for white, yellow, orange and green belts.

Haigh struck gold again in Kata for white to blue belts, sharing top spot with fellow Terracite Dave Falardeau.

That same duo were back on the top podium later but as partners, having triumphed in the two-member team event for white to blue belts.

In the Juniors-only Shiai three member team fight event, Randy Brown, Darvoudis and Jared Mitchell were victorious, Brown going on to add another gold in the Junior Open.

Picking up bronze in that last was Joty Gill, the only female in the junior division.

In adult competition, Nino Roldo took the gold among blue-brown-black belts and another in the open class for those same belts.

Bao Lanh Diep provided the Terrace club with another first place finish in Im-pose for blue to black belts while Bobby Peacockbeat out teammate Mike Graham for gold among white to green belts.

A total of 71 competitors took part in the tournament including members of the Kitimat, Williams Lake and Barrehead, Alta., Ju-Jitsu clubs.

MAKING WAVES. Athletes from across the region got into the swim over the weekend as the Bluebacks hosted their last big competition of the season, the Copperville Invitational. One young lady got so caught up in the competitive atmosphere, she bravely struck on a third length in what was just a two length race. But the extra practice probably didn't hurt.

MINOR HOCKEY

Midgets set example at 'AA' provincials

They may not have won the title, but the Terrace Totem Ford Midgets did not come away from the 'AA' provincial championships empty handed.

Clean, disciplined hockey throughout the Sechelt tournament translated into receiving the coveted B.C. Amateur Hockey Association's Most Sportsmanlike team award.

The trophy is also unique, a 30 inch totem carved by Coast Salish native Jim Yelton and depicting a thunderbird and grizzly.

Throughout the championship coaches Gerry Thomsen and Dawson Kellin had emphasized the importance of the players keeping it clean and not taking retaliation penalties.

The award showed the Midgets followed that advice in every game. Local organizers and BCAHA officials were also impressed by the Midgets off-ice dress code, attitude and behaviour.

Terrace's tournament opener saw them hold a strong Whitehorse, Yukon squad to a 5-5 tie. The Midgets' short bench was bolstered for this game by the addition of four members of the Bantam team playing in Port Coquitlam.

From there on, however, coincidental scheduling prevented the Bantams from offering any more help. Left with just eleven skaters and a goalie, the Midgets were later to be hurt by that manpower shortage.

Game two had Terrace facing the Sunshine Coast entry. Despite dominating play for most of the game, Terrace could not get the winner past a red hot goalie and had to settle for another tie, 4-4.

However, it all came together in their third outing, Terrace jumping to an early first period lead and using their speed to overwhelm the Kootenay's Elk Valley team 7-1.

There was a downside to the win, though, an injury suffered by a Terrace defenceman in the rough play that characterized the end of the game.

Now even more short-handed and playing their third game in 24 hours, the Midgets paid the price in their next match. After two periods of good, close hockey, Terrace simply ran out of steam and could not stop Grandview (Vancouver) piling up the goals.

Nor were they helped by an outstanding performance by the Grandview goalie, the only female player in the tournament. Final score: Grandview 11, Terrace 1.

Tiredness took its toll in the next game as well, that against defending provincial champions North Vancouver Island Eagles.

Despite the Eagles' size, speed and solid goaltending, Terrace stayed with them for a while but ultimately were on the wrong end of a 9-1 score.

The Midgets' 1-2-2 record put them up against a tough Aldergrove team in the position playoff round. One of the hardest hitting games in the entire tournament, it found Terrace rested, injury-free and ready to roll.

Three periods of old fashioned clean, fast hockey left both teams exhausted but Terrace Totem celebrating a 7-5 victory.

The tournament over, the Midgets thanked Thomsen and Kellin for stepping in as last minute replacement coaches. Regular coach Trevor Hendry couldn't make it to Sechelt because of urgent personal business in Alberta - he was getting married.

GOOD SPORTS. Terrace Totem Ford Midgets' conduct both on and off the ice at the 'AA' provincial hockey championships earned them high praise from organizers, and the award for the Most Sportsmanlike team. Seen above are (back row, left to right) Ken Blanes (manager), Jake DeJong (sponsor), Doug Barwise (manager), Ed Dollemore, Chad Sallenback, Brian Barwise, Trevor Hendry (coach), Dawson Kellin (coach), Garry Thomsen (coach), Ron Tanner (manager) and (front row, l-r) Scott Blanes, Jon Lafontaine, Fraser Downie, David Tanner, Sheldon McInnes, Jason Nabess, Shane DeJong and George Poulios. Missing from the photo is Jeremy Lafontaine.

Doane quartet curl to title

A couple of steals early in the game proved the difference as Jonathan Doane's Cassie Hall rink claimed the '93 school curling championship.

After opening with a single, Doane's foursome stole another in the second when Rachael VanHer's raise attempt was just too heavy.

They added another in the third before VanHer's Centennial Christian quartet tightened it up with a deuce.

Doane re-opened the three point gap with two of his own in the fifth then held off VanHer's last end challenge to take the title game 5-3.

Doane's victorious teammates were Evan Smithanik, Darren Owen, Camilo Desierto and sub Matt Ridler.

In the playoff for third, an all Centennial battle, Steven Anaka's crew showed Eric Rolleman no mercy as they exploded for four in each of the third and fourth ends to cruise to an 11-2 win.

Sharing third place honours with Anaka were Nick Rolleman, Darryl Todd and Ejay Johnson while Eric Rolleman's team was rounded out by Stephanie Huisman and Adam Teichroeb.

Noting it had been many years since there'd been school curling in Terrace, organizer Gordon Oates pronounced the re-introduction a great success.

Noting 21 teams from six schools had taken part, Oates said the level of interest had been a pleasant surprise.

And, with all competitors having enjoyed the experience, he hoped to see at least as many teams back next year.

Uplands squeeze Veritas out of tourney top berth

Uplands emerged victorious from the March 26-27 Grade 7 Girls' basketball tournament, but only just.

Facing Veritas in the final, Uplands maintained their unbeaten streak by just two points, winning the title 24-22.

Solveig Adair led the Uplands attack with 12 points while teammate Kimberly Haugland added another 8.

In the losing cause, Elizabeth Clark netted 10 to take her total to a tournament high 54.

It was one of several close games in a tournament which saw five evenly matched teams produce some exciting basketball.

In running up a 4-0 record in round robin, Uplands had been pushed to the limit by Copper Mountain, squeezing a 30-28 win.

Copper Mountain then suffered a similar fate in their final match, a 33-32 loss to Cassie Hall.

And that result was a pleasant reversal for Cassie Hall which had earlier lost by exactly the same margin to Clarence Michiel.

With Cassie Hall, Clarence Michiel and Veritas all finishing with a 2-1 record, it took point difference to decide which faced Uplands in the final.

Veritas got the nod, having outscored its opponents by 30 points compared to Cassie Hall's plus 12 and Clarence Michiel's plus 10 tallies.

Apart from third place in the seven team tourney, Cassie Hall also picked up the Most Sportsmanlike team award.

Meanwhile, grade 6 boys were involved in tournament action at Clarence Michiel school.

With a 10 team turnout, Ken Fraser said there simply wasn't enough time to run a full round-robin style tournament.

So each school team got to play a couple of games followed by a special North v South match up which saw the two sides made up of players from different schools.

The event also featured a skills competition in which entrants got to demonstrate their prowess at the various aspects of the game.

And it took a shoot-out to decide the winner after Larry Bothelo of Veritas and Centennial Christian's Chris Mantel finished with identical points.

Even there, the duo were evenly matched, sinking five consecutive free throws each before Bothelo sunk the unanswered winner.

Most sportsmanlike team award at the tournament went to Uplands school.

ELEMENTARY basketballers were in action again this past weekend as grade 7 boys and grade 6 girls did battle on the court. The action here is from the semi-final between Centennial Christian and Uplands, won convincingly by CCS.

Practice time later

With the clocks springing forward over the weekend, the Terrace Northmen have put back the start time of their practices.

They'll now get underway at 6:30 p.m. every Tuesday and Thursday at the Northwest Community College pitch.

Anyone interested in playing or supporting the team can phone David Hull (638-1327) or Willie McCleary (635-6603).

Top ski event hits the slopes

In what is being billed as the highest calibre ski event held in the region, Ski Smithers will host six days of Lifestream F.I.S. Alpine Spring Series racing beginning today.

Spokesman Jo Anne Maxwell said more than 100 racers from as far away as New Zealand are expected to take part, including Gary Mullen of the Canadian national team.

Currently ranked in the top 30 on the World Cup circuit, Mullen won the downhill and Super G at this year's U.S. nationals.

The Banff, Alta. native was also the only Canadian male skier to qualify for the World Cup downhill finals.

Recognized by the International Federation of Skiing (F.I.S.), the series uses a points system to establish world-wide rankings.

Today and tomorrow sees the Super G races on the Ptarmigan run, giant slalom goes Friday and Saturday on Chapman's Challenge and Sunday and Monday's slaloms on Cinderella close out the meet.

Maxwell said spectators are welcome to come and take in excitement, pointing out the Super G and slalom finish line is easily accessible by foot.

She also emphasized only the run being used for a particular day's race will be closed to the public.

"All other 17 runs will be open for recreational skiers," she added.

For more information, contact Ski Smithers at 1-800-665-4299.

SPIEL FOR WHEELS

The more than 240 curlers taking part in this weekend's Loggers Bonspiel all have a chance to win a new, special edition Honda in the Spiel for Wheels, sponsored by the Terrace Standard and Terrace Honda.

The new addition to the annual event requires curlers to try and throw a rock so it comes to rest covering the exact centre of the button. It's not an easy shot, but there'll be no lack of hopefuls trying to pick up that new set of wheels.

And even if the car proves elusive, there's also the possibility of cash prizes of $1,000 or $500.

To catch the excitement, be at the curling club at 3 p.m. Saturday.

PROJECT STAFF REQUIRED IMMEDIATELY

The Terrace Women's Resource Centre has immediate openings for a total of 1.5 Project Staff. The project is a training program for women, a "bridge" for women moving from work in the home to the paid workforce or job training.

We require two staff persons with expertise in three main areas:

Training (curriculum planning and instruction; liaison with trainers, employers, unions, "role models" recruitment, screening of participants, purchasing training equipment, services, supplies; offering information and support to trainees);

Administration (report writing, record keeping, liaison); and

Child care research (conducting a feasibility study to provide licensed care for the children of bridging program participants; planning, implementing and overseeing child care options).

QUALIFICATIONS: In your area(s) of expertise, you should have several years experience as well as formal training. Both staff should also have excellent organizational, communication and research skills; familiarity with community resources; and highly developed interpersonal skills. Familiarity with consensual decision-making processes is an asset.

BOTH POSITIONS start April 19 (or earlier). The Terrace Women's Resource Centre offers competitive wages in a union atmosphere.

I Have a Place In Heaven
Please don't sing sad songs for me,
For I am in a perfect place,
For I am in a perfect place,
Away from pain and tears...
I'm far away from hunger,
And hurt and want and pride.
I have a place in heaven,
With the Master at my side.
My life on earth was very good,
As earthly lives can go,
But Paradise is so much more,
Than anyone can know...
My heart is filled with happiness,
And sweet rejoicing, too.
To walk with God is perfect peace,
A joy forever new.

You will be sadly missed by your wife,
Muriel, brother, children & grandchildren

Because of your efforts, the first step towards restoring the historical fishery habitat of the Zaul Zap Slough in the Nass River watershed is successfully complete. The time and energies dedicated to make this project a success is worthy of recognition by your peers and by the citizens of the northwest.

It is particularly rewarding to see such a diverse group of "resource-interested" people cooperate and resolve an issue in such a short period of time. I hope this project's success will serve as an example for other conflict resolution strategies underway throughout B.C.

Again, thank you for your participation

Yours truly,

INVITATION FOR PESTICIDE USE PERMIT

Spotted Knapweed is a European plant that has infested the Northwest States and Southern B.C. Once established this weed crowds out native vegetation causing serious environmental and economic damage. Spotted Knapweed was first found in the Skeena Region in the 1980s. There are only a few sites of spotted Knapweed in the Region and these are controlled to prevent further spread of the weed. One site is near Granite Creek on Highway 37 South. Biological control agents have been released on this site and the Knapweed has been hand pulled and cut and the site has been seeded with desirable grasses and legumes. Efforts to prevent weed spread from this site will continue with hand pulling and a permit application has been made to use a herbicide to spot treat some of the spotted Knapweed plants.

The permit application number is 401-625-93/95 and the applicant is the British Columbia Minister of Forests, attention: Bob Drinkwater, Bag 5000, Smithers, B.C., V0J 2N0, phone 847-7442. The exact location of the site is south of Lot 3985 near Highway 37 South. The site will be monitored and if required, treatments will be made between May 15, 1993 and October 31, 1995, on less than one tenth of a hectare with a hand held or back pack sprayer. The application is for the herbicide Banvel, common name Dicamba. Copies of the permit application and maps of the treatment area may be examined at the Kalam Forest District, Room 200, 5220 Keith Avenue, Terrace, B.C., V8G 1L1 or the Prince Rupert Forest Region, 3726 Alfred Avenue, Smithers.

This permit application has been reviewed by a technical subcommittee of the Northwest Weed Committee that includes representatives from the Ministries of Environment, Forests, Agriculture Fisheries and Food, Transport and highways, the Skeena Regional Cattlemen's Association and the Northwest B.C. Coalition for Alternatives to pesticides. A person wishing to contribute information about the site for the evaluation of this application for a use permit must send written copies of this information to both the applicant and Regional Manager of the Pesticide Control Program, Skeena Region, Bag 5000, Smithers, B.C., V0J 2N0, within 30 days of the publication of this notice.

APPLICATION FOR PESTICIDE USE PERMIT

Canadian National Railways, B.C. North District, has applied for a pesticide use permit (application no. 107-113-93/95) to apply Karmex DF (diuron) to a maximum of 700 hectares, and Tordon 22K (Picloram) to a maximum of 450 hectares from McBride to Prince Rupert, and Terrace to Kitimat, B.C. The purpose of the treatment is control of weeds in the railway ballast, and noxious weeds in the right way.

The Karmex will be applied by hired truck-mounted spray boom, and the Tordon will be applied using a hired truck-mounted spray boom and power hose/nozzle. The project is expected to commence June 1, 1993, and be completed October 15, 1995. A copy of the application and map of the proposed treatment area may be viewed between 9:00 am and 4:30 pm at government agents' offices in Prince George, Vanderhoof, Burns Lake, Smithers, Terrace, and Prince Rupert, and in the village office in McBride.

Anyone wishing to contribute information about the site for the evaluation of this application for a use permit must send written copies of this information to both the applicant, attention Patrick Egan, CN technical support engineer, #602-299 Victoria St., Prince George, B.C. V2L 5B8; (604) 565-8343, and to the regional manager of the pesticide management program, Ministry of Environment, Lands, and Parks, 1011 Fourth Ave, Prince George, B.C. V2L 3H9, within 30 days of the publication of this notice.

CN B.C. NORTH DISTRICT

HERBICIDE APPLICATION PROGRAM

Vegetation control is important for safe train operations. When left unchecked, weeds can cause trackside fires, inhibit the operation of signals and switches, and cause damage to the ballast making the tracks unstable. Uncontrolled vegetation also presents an employee safety problem around buildings and when crews are entraining and dewatering. By controlling vegetation, CN is able to improve its operating reliability and fulfill its responsibility to the community to maintain its property in good repair.

CN uses a variety of methods to control vegetation. These methods include manual brush cutting, lawn mowers and weed eaters, and herbicides. The use of herbicides is limited to those areas where it is impractical to use any other method.

CN has applied to the B.C. government for a permit to use herbicides on its ballast between McBride and Prince Rupert, and Terrace and Kitimat. The program is expected to commence June 1, 1993, and be complete by October 15, 1995. The herbicides CN intends to use are Karmex and Tordon, both of which have been approved by both the provincial and federal governments. They will be applied by a provincially licensed applicator.

The herbicides will be applied under the following conditions:

- the truck mounted spray boom which applies the herbicides will be shrouded to prevent drift.
- all watercourses are protected by a ten metre pesticide free zone which is marked in advance.
- any licensed water supplies or wells are protected by a thirty metre pesticide-free zone.
- the licensed applicator responsible for applying the herbicide to the ballast will be accompanied by an official from the B.C. Ministry of the Environment. The truck used in the application process will not exceed ten miles an hour, and will be proceeded by a CN crew to ensure that all marked areas are clearly observed by the applicator.
- the wind speed cannot exceed 10 mph.

For further information contact Patrick Egan, CN technical support engineer, 602 - 299 Victoria St., Prince George, B.C. V2L 5B8; (604) 565-8343
